

With Uhlman, The Harvester, Charley Mitchell and Lewis Forrest working in tiptop form after their let-up, due to the long journey home from Russia, C. K. G. Billings will probably start all four trotting stars in the hope of securing new records at the Lexington meet. Just what records the horses will go against has not been decided, except that Charley Mitchell and Lewis Forrest will attack the team record of 2:07 2-4 held by The Monk and Equity.

Knockout Brown, the New York lightweight, whose real name is Valentine Braun, has earned $81,000 with his two fights during the past 26 months. At first, Mother Braun was opposed to her Valentine taking up fighting as a profession, but when she saw the money begin to pour in, and observed in the papers how her son's name and picture were being used so often, she changed her mind. Knockout saves his money—the most of it goes into New York real estate.

Kranzlein, who ten years ago was as famous an all-round athlete as Thorpe, the great Carlisle Indian, is today, recently, made some observations on the football situation at the University of Michigan.

"Yost's chances of bringing out a fine team this year are not of the best," said the famous coach. "Yost rather depends on heavy men and beef in his line, but from present indications he will have a lighter line than usual. It will make the Pennsylvania game all the more interesting as the teams will both have a very speedy backfield with a light line."

Kranzlein leaves on October 5 for Athletics, who has been playing with the Baltimore team, is to get another trial in the big show, this time with the New York Highlanders.

In some quarters they declare that Marty O'Toole, Pittsburgh's $2,500 pitcher, is a failure. Maybe he is. But he has taken part in more than thirty games, winning half of them, which is not a bad record for his first season in fast company.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Wisconsin will close the season with a game with Iowa instead of Chicago, as has been the custom for some years.

The playing of Halfback Philbin, of Yale, resembles the work of the older brother Steve Philbin, the old Eli wonder.

Sam White, the former Princeton star, who beat Harvard and Yale last year, is coaching the Tigers in picking up a loose ball.

The hoodoo of probation that has been hanging over Sam Felton's head since college opened has vanished, and Sam has joined the Harvard squad.

It costs $15 a week to feed each man at the training table in the big colleges. The same player will pay about $4 per when he has to a title his own board bill.

WITH THE BOXERS.

Eddie Santry, the former featherweight, who was a star in his day, is stricken with paralysis at his home in Chicago.

Mike Gibbons has passed up a match with Jack (Twin) Sullivan. He will box Mike Glover in Providence on October 15.

Another English middleweight, Dig Thomas, has arrived in New York, and is anxious to show Gotham fans what he can do.

PLAN A RACE MEET FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 11

Local Horses Will Contend for Honors On Local Track on Afternoon of October 11.

Announcement is made of a race meet to be held on the track of the Jansville Park Association on Friday afternoon, Oct. 11. The event has been contemplated for some time and is placed at this date in order to get entries of horse who are at present filling their clothing dates at the county fairs.

Most of the entries in the three events scheduled will be local horses although several speedsters are expected from Edgerton and Beloit. The entry list as now made out includes the following:

For all class: Charley Howe, Peter Brunet, The Rex, Agnes K. Class B, Jessie C. Tiny Tim, Flora W. and Josie McKinney. Class C, Dexter A. Lady Jones, Ester Lily, Rexetta, Red Babe, and Lady Kubi.

MAY SET NEW DATE FOR THE RECEPTION

Members of Football Squad Unable To Attend Senior-Freshmen Event On Evening of Oct. 11.

For the reason that eight members of the senior class at the high school are on the football squad and that the game with Geneva on Oct. 12 will prevent their attendance at the Senior-Freshman reception if it is held on the evening of Oct. 11, a change in the date of the annual event is being considered. The only other date which now is available is the evening of Oct. 19, following the Jefferson game here. Although next Friday evening was the time decided on by the senior class at its meeting last night, it is probable that a change will be made to the latter date.

CANNON AND FALTER BOTH DISQUALIFIED

Two High School Football Stars Will Not Be Allowed to Play in Stoughton Game Saturday.

When the Jansville eleven meets the heavy Stoughton team on Saturday, it will test the local team's strength. Coach Curtis is beginning to think that he has a difficult task within the next two days to round out a team of merit to send against the neighboring team.

Discouragement prevails among the squad and also with the coach. FALTER will not play and neither will Cannon, the big center. The loss of these two men will be keenly felt, and will have something to do in determining the score of this hard game.

Cummings has been shifted from left tackle to right half, in FALTER's place. He handles the position well. Practice was in full progress last night, and the second team ran away with the first team at times. This will not dishearten the locals and they will fight for every inch on Saturday.

The proposed lineup will not be known until Friday, but the one last night was as follows: L. B. Smiley, L. T. Mohr, L. C. Cook, C. Garbutt, R. G. Stewart, R. T. Jones, R. E. Dalton, Q. B. J. Seavert, L. H. Edler; R. H. Cummings, P. B. Ryan.

The following is the complete schedule for the coming season. The Whitewater aggregation having asked for a game which the locals accepted. Racine and Burlington were dropped. October 5, Stoughton at Stoughton. October 12, Northwestern Military Academy at Lake Geneva. October 19, Jefferson here. October 26, Whitewater here. November 2, Beloit here. November 9, Open date. November 16, Beloit at Beloit. November 23, Waukesha here.

ALCOHOL IN PE-RU-NA-- AN UNJUST CRITICISM

S. E. HARTMAN, M. D.

Having a little business in one of the federal offices of the city after it was finished I fell in conversation with the official in charge concerning Peruna. I mention his business to show that the conversation was conducted with a man of more than ordinary intelligence, being an employee of the government who had passed through several civil service examinations. He said to me, not knowing who I was: "I think a great deal of this patent medicine business ought to be stopped. Especially such remedies as Peruna. Peruna, as you know, is a stimulant and contains eighteen or twenty per cent of alcohol. People take it without knowing what it is, and such remedies ought to be prohibited by law. My own mother took Peruna once. She had a cough, night sweats, was growing emaciated and weak. Several doctors examined her. The opinion was expressed several times that she was going into consumption. One thought it was chronic bronchitis. At any rate, her condition was quite serious. She was unable to get any relief from the doctors she consulted, although she took their medicines faithfully for nearly a year. Some one told her about Peruna, and against my wish and against the wishes of our family, she began taking it. At once she improved, and in less than six months she apparently was well. We did all we could to discourage her in taking Peruna, but she persisted. It finally came out in the magazines that Peruna contained alcohol. Then we knew at once what it was that benefited my mother. It was simply the alcohol that Peruna contained. We had the laugh on mother. We have not ceased to make fun of her yet about her being cured with a dilution of alcohol. She seems to be embarrassed by our teasing her, but is very stubborn. She says that if she were to be sick in the same way again she would certainly get Peruna and take it, alcohol or no alcohol. So you see if people will persist in such foolishness there ought to be a law to prevent them."

I ventured to interpose a question. "You say the doctors could not cure her, and yet you say Peruna did cure her. What difference does it make to you whether it was alcohol or some other drug that effected the cure?"

"Well, I don't know that it makes any difference, but it is deceiving people to give them alcohol even though it does cure them," he said. I replied, "Why, I cannot exactly understand that. Alcohol is a drug, the same as quinine or morphine. If alcohol cures certain diseases where is the deception? I understand that the Peruna people print on the label of each bottle the per cent of alcohol contained in Peruna. Each patient may read it, if he pleases. I cannot see where there is any deception."

"Well, I would not take Peruna," he persisted. "Now, I was sick, I had a stomach disease. A violent pain, that would come on about an hour or two after each meal. It grew worse and worse. I was also constipated. I consulted several doctors in our city about my health. I went to see a prominent specialist in New York City, paid out a great deal of money, but no help. One time I was having a bad spell on the train. The gentleman who occupied the next seat was a retired physician with whom I had been acquainted. He said to me, 'My friend, if you want to get well I would advise you to take a glass of lager beer before each meal. I think that will cure you.' Having followed the directions of several good physicians without any assistance, I thought I would try the beer. In a very short time I found it was helping me, and I was entirely well. My bowels became regular and I had no more pain. No more distress after meals. Now, if my mother had used some remedy like that it would be all right. But to persist in using some secret remedy like Peruna. I think it is outrageous."

Again I ventured to ask some questions. I asked: "What do you suppose it was in the lager beer that effected the cure?" "Why, I presume it was the stimulant it contained. Yes, no doubt it was the stimulant." "You know, of course, that the stimulant in beer is alcohol, the same as in wine or whiskey or any other alcoholic drink?" "Yes, I have heard say that beer contains about five per cent of alcohol." "That is correct," I replied. "You took a bottle of beer before each meal, did you?" "Yes." "In doing so you were drinking a pint of a five per cent, solution of alcohol." "Yes, I suppose so." "Five per cent, would be one-twenty-

th. As each pint contains sixteen ounces you were then taking a little less than an ounce of alcohol before each meal." "Yes." "But you objected to your mother's taking alcohol in the Peruna, and yet she was taking far less alcohol than you were. As I understand it, the dose of Peruna is one tablespoonful. Supposing it to be twenty per cent alcohol, there would be in each dose one-fifth of a tablespoonful of alcohol, which would be about half a teaspoonful, while you were taking at least four teaspoonfuls of alcohol in your bottle of beer. And yet you objected to your mother's taking Peruna on the ground that the Peruna contains alcohol. In my opinion it was the alcohol that cured both of you. Your mother evidently was cured of a very serious ailment. Peruna contains alcohol. It was undoubtedly the alcohol that cured her, or at least helped to. The other ingredients of Peruna might have assisted, no doubt did. In your case it was the alcohol in the beer that cured you of the stomach difficulty. Peruna has cured thousands of such cases."

"Well, I declare," he replied, "I never thought of it in that way before. There has been so much said about alcohol being poisonous that I suppose my mind has been prejudiced against it. But as you say, there is also alcohol in beer, the same kind of alcohol as is used in Peruna. I cannot see where the difference is, myself."

"Well," I replied, "you have been doing exactly what the average man and woman is doing. You have allowed your mind to become prejudiced against Peruna on account of its containing alcohol. Without stopping to look into the matter at all you have assumed that there is something terrible disreputable about remedies containing alcohol. The fact is, however, that most of all fluid medicines, whether prescribed by a doctor or put up as a patent medicine, contain a certain amount of alcohol. It was alcohol that cured your mother. It was alcohol that cured you. In my opinion, alcohol in some form or other is making more cures than all other drugs combined. This is not saying, however, that Peruna contains only alcohol, for it does contain excellent remedies besides alcohol. But I do contend that the alcohol in Peruna is not only not harmful to those who take it, but if taken in the doses prescribed on the bottle it will do a great deal of good, and there is not the slightest danger of forming a drug habit."

Young Freddie is a natural student and observer, and he is especially interested in railway matters. The other day, waiting with his mother in a train mysteriously "held up" at a wayside station, Freddie pondered: "Mamma, I guess this is where the engine gets its dinner. They feed it on coal, hot water and matches, and I guess they let it have all the hot air it wants for dessert."

Right Doing.

Practical duty enriches the fancy and the heart, and action clears and deepens the affections. DEMOCRATIC HISTORY.
During Cleveland's last administration and the panic and hard times attendant, Harper's Weekly published a series of pictures of street scenes in New York, showing the soup-houses and bread lines which were so much in evidence. News items concerning panic and failure were of daily occurrence, and while the dark days of '93 and '94 are history to the present generation, they were intensely real to the people who were then active on the stage.
The republican national committee has reproduced some of these pictures as a pictorial record of conditions under the last free trade democratic administration, as well as a few paragraphs of current news gathered from various parts of the country during these lean years. They present a strong argument against democratic incompetency, and should convince the most skeptical that a change of administration is dangerous in the extreme.
The newspaper files of 1893-1896 give in "cold type" the business and industrial record of this period of democratic adversity. Under date lines from all sections of the country the sickening story of the struggles of the unemployed, of failures, violence, starvation, the growth of anarchy and finally of deep-seated revulsion against political conditions which brought about this adversity, is told. The record would fill a book. Here are some of the significant "exhibits":
July 18, 1893.—Denver, Colo.: four banks close their doors; runs on others.
July 22.—Two bank failures in Minneapolis, and on the 27th ten more Northwestern banks suspended.
February, 1894.—All mines in Massillon, O., district closed. Twenty-five thousand miners out of work.
February 20.—Unemployed rioters in Boston clubbed by police.
March 13.—Striking and unemployed Paterson silk weavers riot.
March 29.—In Boston 12,000 unemployed workmen march to the State House and demand employment.
March 24.—Coxey's Army organized for the purpose of marching on Washington and demanding relief of congress.
April 20.—In Omaha a mob tries to deport Kelly's industrial army by seizing a train of box cars, but the army refuses to go.
April 21.—About 150,000 miners stop work in Pennsylvania.
May 20.—In Pennsylvania the Governor issues a warning to rioters and goes to the coke regions to use his personal influence toward allaying the disturbances.
June 17.—Striking miners in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia return to work at reduced wages.
June 18.—General Cantwell's industrial army captures a train of provisions in Wisconsin and rides 200 miles. Industrial army riots reported in fourteen states and two territories.
July 5.—Great destruction of property by rioters at Chicago. Regular and State troops ordered out.
July 16.—Debs and other labor leaders arrested at Chicago.
September 15.—Lockout of 38,000 mill operatives at Fall River.
September 20.—General strike of garment workers in Boston.
October.—In New York, in the winters of 1894 and 1895, free soup places were started by philanthropic men and women, public relief institutions were overcrowded with applicants, the police record in New York and Brooklyn showed a frightful increase in the number of suicides, because of business failures.
October 9.—Eight thousand cloak-makers in New York strike for more pay and shorter hours.
October 10.—Five thousand longshoremen and stevedores in New York without work on account of coastwise steamers having no cargoes.
October 11.—General Kelly, at Oakland, Cal., organizes a new industrial army of the unemployed.
In January, 1896, the Cleveland administration sold more bonds to replenish the constantly falling treasury reserve, making an increase in the national debt from all sales of about $282,000,000.
As a result of this record of adversity there was an overwhelming triumph of the republicans in the Fall elections of 1894, and this triumph was repeated in 1896 by the election of McKinley, and in 1900 by his reelection.
This is the kind of history that is liable to repeat itself during the next four years, for the fight is on between the two great parties. The question is not whether Wilson or Taft is the better man. They are simply incidents as compared to the vital question of national administration.
The panic of 1893 was not caused by a scarcity of money, but by lack of confidence. The democratic party was a free trade party, as it is today, and capital sought shelter as soon as the party gained control.
This loss of confidence was so universal that it affected all kinds of business. A great volume of money was retired from the banks and hid away for safe keeping, and the circulation was so retarded that bank and business failures were of every day occurrence.
There is everything to lose and nothing to gain in a change of administration at the present time. Confidence is the great block of capital which keeps the wheels of industry in motion. It is thoroughly enjoyed today and any effort to destroy it is suicidal in the extreme. A safe and sane administration is of more vital importance than personal or party ambition, "don't you think?"

POLITICAL INDIFFERENCE.
In spite of the fact that politicians are shouting themselves hoarse, and money is being spent freely to promote the interests of candidates, the lack of enthusiasm is everywhere apparent, and the indifference is worse than open opposition. After citing the fact that the railroads of the country have booked orders for one million tons of steel rails to be delivered in 1912, as evidence of continued prosperity, the Wall Street Journal offers the following note of warning:
"There is indeed a danger that this indifference may be carried too far. A radical splitting of the republican party might easily mean, in present conditions, the election of a democratic president, with a congress so overwhelmingly democratic and radical that his power to check sweeping legislation on the tariff and in other directions might become nullified.
"Office has a way of instilling conservatism into the most radical mind, when it carries the responsibility of the presidency of the United States, but this is a contingency which the most prosperous business conditions cannot afford to neglect. It has been constantly pointed out in these columns that the power of legislation for good has always been absurdly exaggerated among us. We have had, however, recent and striking instances of its power for mischief; and in making plans for the future no business man can pretend to ignore the political outlook, which is far from reassuring."
The point is well taken and suggests the danger in a change of national administration. The destiny of the country is in safe hands, and the outlook for a long continued era of prosperity, was ever so promising.
The man of average common sense, whatever may be his political creed, knows that any sort of a change is an experiment which may result in disaster.
The democratic party has a record of failure, and the new party is an untried proposition. It is a good time to let well enough alone, and this will be the verdict of the great mass of indifferent voters, when they speak in November.

WASHINGTON SETS THE PACE.
The forty dollar cuspidor which the state recently acquired for the use of her public servants at Madison, would be considered a bargain as well as a necessity, out in the state of Washington, where the art of spending public money is reduced to a science.
The report of the State Auditor of Washington is a volume of six hundred pages, of which a considerable portion is blank paper—what the grafters call "printer's fat." It records numerous officials; big salaries with extra compensations; lady clerks at $1,800 a year; months of vacations at full pay; herds of politicians' clerks, bearing a suspicious number of similar family names; expenses endless, mileage fees interminable, postage stamps by the bushel; porters, pages, waiters, parasites and nepotism everywhere, and with what to show for it? A few extravagantly conceived and badly executed public works, without reproductive return, the interest on whose capital cost is another burden on the taxpayer. No use to pay our money for the weekly any more.
For we get all the news down to the corner grocery store.
We hear enough news every night around the stove, I guess.
To fill up several columns in the paper, more or less.
The ladies' sewing circle is a day or so behind.
Us fellows on the gossip of the very choicest kind.
Ez Hand says that he hears as how the teacher's got a mash;
Hank Tumms' wife does the farmin' on their twenty-acre lot.
That's why he's always loafin' round some cool and shady spot.
Now mind, we mustn't mention it. It's a secret yet of course.
But Ames Jiggins' second wife is after a divorce.
It ain't yet known for certain, but there's some folks that do tell.
That Andy Jones and his third wife don't get on very well.
There's quite a rumor goin' that our neighbor Emmer Spink,
Is a-goin' to wed the trimmer. She's got good taste, we don't think.
They say as how Anse Hudson's wife has got a lurid past,
But no one's speakin' it out loud because they do not dare.
They say that Abel Frisby's got a mortgage on his place.
And he's to that point where he's only got three days of grace.
They say that Ezra Harkins' dassent come down town until
He gets the price to settle up his last year's grocery bill.
The ladies' aid and sewing circle will have quite a chore
To catch up with the gossip at the corner grocery store.

On The Spur of the Moment.
Dear Sir: Our rational friend Whitehead Reid is anxious to drop the cares, also the expense of ambassadorship to Great Britain, and it becomes my painful duty to choose a successor.
After casting about for some time and sifting up the available timber I have decided upon you for the place. It requires a man of superior attainments educationally, a good mandolin and bridge whist player, a splendid parlor entertainer, a very fine physique and rare beauty of face and figure. He must also be a good dancer and a man who can stretch whose directors could show such a record, and stay out of jail."
The state has a population of about one million with a state tax roll of seven and one-half million dollars. The county and city taxes are three times this amount, and the people are so burdened that most of the American farmers have forsaken the state and gone to Canada.
Washington, like Wisconsin, is called a model state, and so it is, the sort of a model created by radical reform. All the western state needs is a university, but in spite of this disadvantage, she seems able to play a close second.
Wisconsin has more brands of republicans just now than the law allows. Classified, they represent La Follette, McGovern, Roosevelt, Wilson, Taft, and Karel. Some of them aspire to belong to two or three camps at the same time, but the pace is a little strenuous. There will be several funerals after election, and the political atmosphere will be clear.

As much as we hate to disappoint our friend Will we must pause and think this proposition over. If we can dispose of a second-hand phonograph and annex a new pair of trousers we may run down to Washington and talk it over with him. It is fierce to face such an elegant chance to be a patriot and then not have the price to do it with, but it may be arranged. Nothing is impossible in this world excepting for a one-armed man to hook his wife up the back.

AUTOPSY INDICATED A CRIMINAL ATTACK

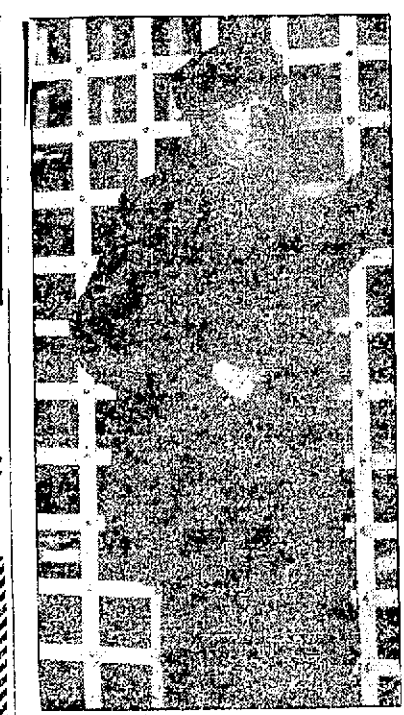

SO PHYSICIANS TESTIFY IN THE BERGSTERMAN CASE.

HOLD INQUEST TODAY

Many Witnesses Called to Weave Net About the Guilty Party Closer if Possible.

While Mrs. Edden and Gibson were unable to state definitely what was the direct cause of the death of Matilda Bergsterman, they indicated that preceding her death, she had been criminally attacked.

This substantiates the theory advanced yesterday that the girl had suffered indignities before her death. All details of the life and habits of the prisoner and the deceased were taken up by many witnesses called. In the inquest held to investigate the probable cause of the death of Matilda Bergsterman, twelve witnesses were examined in Justice Stanley Tellman's court this morning, and at half past twelve o'clock, with several more witnesses to be summoned, the inquest was adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon. The examination was conducted by District Attorney Stanley Dunsdale. The inquest will not be concluded before tomorrow.

The first witness called was Dr. R. W. Edden, who told of examining the woman's body at the house on Grand avenue, and of performing an autopsy with Dr. J. W. Gibson on the body. He described the wounds and bruises found, and said there were indications of a criminal assault committed on the body before death. In his opinion he said death might have resulted from one of two possible causes; either that the woman had died of strangulation or smothering, or that she had been fighting and became physically exhausted, and death had resulted from the body being left out in the cold. Life had been extinct in the body about eight or nine hours when he first examined it. The hemorrhages from the wounds on the woman, he said, were not sufficient to cause death.

The testimony of Dr. J. W. Gibson, who performed the autopsy with Dr. Edden, was similar to that given by the other physician. He said there were no marks on the neck to show she had been choked to death, and the trachea or windpipe, had not been broken. His opinion as to the cause of death concurred with that of Dr. Edden, and he stated further that there were not all the symptoms of death by smothering, such as a congestion of the veins and arteries. Such congestion as was found, he said, might have resulted from the position the body was lying in when found. Questioned as to the probability of death resulting had the woman been subject to epileptic fits, the doctor testified that in his belief a struggle would not have brought on a fit, nor would such a fit prove fatal.

Details of his visit to the Bergsterman home yesterday morning when word of the woman's death was first received, and his investigations there, and his conversation with Fred Bergsterman, father of the woman, who is now held on the charge of murder, were related by Officer Peter Chamblion.

Quarreled Frequently.

The domestic troubles of the Bergstermans, so far as he knew of them, were told to the jury by Charles Behling, watchman at the crossing of the St. Paul railroad on Center avenue. He testified that from his slumby, a short distance from the Bergsterman home, he had seen Bergsterman come home drunk many times, at times so drunk the man had to crawl up the steps into the house. He said that the man and his daughter had quarreled frequently, and that a week ago Sunday Bergsterman had chased her out of the house three or four times, but she had returned through another door than the one out of which she had been chased. He stated that he had never seen any man around the house except company invited by Bergsterman, and that he had never seen the woman in anyone's company.

That Bergsterman had ordered his daughter out of his house because he had secured a housekeeper, and that Matilda Bergsterman had been seeking to find a place to make her home, was a part of the testimony of Mrs. H. W. Brown at the inquest this morning. Mrs. Brown testified that Monday morning Miss Bergsterman had come to the Brown home and had worked there about an hour. While there Miss Bergsterman had told that her father had come to the house on Grand avenue on Sunday with a woman who he said was going to keep house for him, and he had ordered his daughter to leave at once.

On Monday morning, after Miss Bergsterman had finished her work at the Brown home, Mrs. Brown had taken the girl to Hickory street, to look up a place the girl had in view. Other facts brought out in her testimony were that Bergsterman had continually used abusive language to his daughter and that at one time last winter, Miss Bergsterman came to the Brown home crying, and had said that her father had tried to choke her. At other times when the man had tried to strike his daughter, she had run away. The girl had been befriended by Mrs. Brown and the latter had kept and deposited in the bank for Miss Bergsterman $153. This Miss Bergsterman, acting on Mrs. Brown's advice, had saved up in order to have enough to keep her in case she left her father. All that Bergsterman had done for his daughter, according to Mrs. Brown's testimony, was to furnish a lodging place as he never allowed the woman to do any cooking and kept the provisions locked up.

The testimony of Mrs. Thomas Edden and of Mrs. Mary Brown, who had befriended the woman, and for whom she had worked, did not add any new fact to those given by Mrs. Brown. Other witnesses called this morning were: Mrs. Emily Messenger, with whom Miss Bergsterman had lived for a week; L. E. Conklin, who was one of the first to hear of Miss Bergsterman's death, and the first to arrive at the Bergsterman home yesterday morning; Mrs. Conklin, and Mrs. Augusta Thompson, neighbors, who were at the house when the police arrived; and Charles Spangnig, a German who had purchased a picture from Bergsterman on Monday.

THE BERGSTERMAN HOME.

Spangnig's testimony was given in German. This afternoon testimony was heard from Chief of Police Ampley, Eugene Roessling and Miles Panning, bartender in the saloon where Bergsterman spent Monday evening.

Panning testified that Bergsterman did not leave the saloon until after eleven o'clock. Mr. Roessling testified that Bergsterman came to his store between 12:30 and 1 o'clock Tuesday morning but that he, though he was drunk so did not pay any attention to his actions. All the testimony was heard this afternoon but the jury will not bring in a verdict until later.

Funeral Tomorrow.

The funeral of Matilda Bergsterman will be held at nine o'clock tomorrow morning from St. Mary's church.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Will Not Lose Sight: Dandages were yesterday removed from the face of Sylvester Sutton, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Sutton, who was badly burned in a gasoline explosion Sunday, and it was feared that he will not lose the sight of his right eye as had been feared. He is resting easily and a speedy recovery is expected.

Calls For Hosts: Deputy Sheriff Walter J. Fuent of Charles City, Iowa, arrived here at nine o'clock last night and left this morning with his prisoner, Theodore Hoelt, who escaped from custody there while undergoing sentence. He served fifteen days of a thirty day sentence on the chain gang when he ran away.

Two Given Terms: But two men were brought before Judge Fifield on charges of intoxication this morning. Otto Lentz and Ed Johnson. Johnson was picked up last night by Officer Champion on the porch of a house on Center street, and he got Lentz on the same trip. Johnson, an Orfordville man, claiming he has not been in court here for two years and Lentz said it was four years since he was last arraigned. Both were given their choice of a fine of $1 and costs or six days in jail and neither had any money.

Still at Sea: The officers are still at sea as to what has become of the horse stolen from the Ryan livery and the thief who took it. Turnkey Philo Kemp drove north into Dane county yesterday as far as Stoughton, and found no trace of the rig beyond the home of a Mr. Colwell in the town of Porter, where he learned that the rig was driven into the yard at dusk the day of the theft.

Erratum: In the account of the account of overturning of an automobile at Indian Ford in last night's issue of the Gazette the name of Paul Leudke was erroneously given as the owner of the car. The owner is August Leudke.

Enjoyed a Banquet: Members of the Helphal Circle, a woman's society of the Baptist church, and their husbands enjoyed a banquet in the church dining room last evening. In the church dining room last evening. John Van Horn and wife have sold to Albert Leudke's their farm in the town of Bradford for a consideration of $24,225; Joseph Evans and wife of Clinton have sold to John W. Hessecker of Allen Grove their farm in Rock and Walworth counties for a consideration of $10,800; Peter A. Smith and wife of Evansville have sold to Thomas H. Bowden and wife of Alhambra their farm in the town of Meadville for a consideration of $11,700, according to deeds filed in the register of deed's office today.

Church Organized: A statement of the organization of the Grady Congregational church society of Beloit, Wis., with R. Evans, E. E. Patch and P. F. Wagner as the incorporators, was filed in the register of deed's office today.

Marriage License: A license to wed was issued by the county clerk this afternoon to Errol O. Winter and Martha Allen, both of Janesville.

MISS NELLIE FROST WEDS WARD A. RYAN

Nuptial Ceremony is Solemnized at Nine O'clock This Morning at St. Mary's Church.

The wedding of Miss Nellie Frost daughter of J. W. Frost of Avalon, and Ward A. Ryan of Milwaukee, son of Ed. H. Ryan of this city, was solemnized at nine o'clock this morning at St. Mary's church. The Rev. Father W. A. Goebel read the marriage service in the presence of relatives and friends. St. Aloysius' male choir of which the groom was at one time a member sang several selections. After a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Ryan left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Milwaukee where Mr. Ryan is employed as an electrician. Both the young people have many Janesville friends.

ADVERSE EXAMINATION WILL BE HELD ON MONDAY NEXT

Subpoenas have been served for an adverse examination on Monday next before Court Commissioner Edwin F. Carpenter, in the suit brought by Arthur Baird, against N. L. Carle, in which damages are asked. Edgar L. Wood of Milwaukee is attorney for Mr. Baird and Jeffris, Mount, Oestreich and Avery for the defendant. The case is on the circuit court calendar for trial at the next term of court.

GIVE A RECEPTION FOR DR. LAUGHLIN

Presbyterian Minister is Honored by Congregation on Occasion of His Seventh Anniversary
Here.

Members of the Presbyterian church and congregation gathered at the church parlors last evening to extend congratulatory greetings to their pastor, Dr. J. W. Laughlin, on the occasion of his seventh anniversary as minister in the local church.

The Sunday school rooms were filled with church members and friends glad of the opportunity to honor their pastor and a spirit of genial good-will prevailed.

Decorations for the event were elaborate and their artistic arrangement and completeness were due to the efforts of the committee of which Miss Gladys Heddies was chairman. Autumn leaves and foliage in large bunches with huge bouquets of marigolds and other late summer flowers combined to make the rooms most attractive.

After the opening reception, a program composed of congratulatory addresses and delightful musical numbers was given. James Lamb presided and introduced the various speakers. Dr. James Mills gave a few remarks in behalf of the congregation and the other three evangelical churches were represented on the program by Dr. David Beaton, Rev. J. C. Hazen and Rev. John Reynolds. Compliments were showered on Dr. Laughlin by the various speakers and these were punctuated now and then with clever and witty thrusts. An original poem written and prepared by Mrs. O. W. Athon with Dr. Laughlin's accomplishments and aims during his residence here as the subject matter, was especially good and was received with applause.

Musical numbers on the program were also delightful. Miss Grace Murphy demonstrated her unusual abilities at the piano and responded to an encore. Three quartettes, a male, ladies' and a double quartette, sang several appropriate selections and Mrs. John G. Rexford sang a solo, "Birthday" by Cowan. The musical program was in charge of Prof. J. S. Taylor.

After the program light refreshments were served by young ladies of the church. All present united in the wish that Dr. Laughlin continue as pastor here for many years.

Knew What He Was Doing.
A five-year-old boy in Riverside, Cal., recently made a pie according to his own observations, cutting openings in the top crust for the steam to escape. When his father said to him, "The steam will come out," he straightened up and with emphasis replied: "I'm making a pie and not a boiler."

Worked That Time, Anyway.
In the Irish rebellion a bombshell whizzed toward an Irishman's head. Pat dodged it with a low bow, and it went by, taking off the head of a man behind him. "Faith," exclaimed Pat, "ye never knew a man to lose anything by bein' perille!"

TO A YOUNG GIRL.
My dear girl:
Do you realize how easily you may make a cardinal mistake in your acceptance of a future husband?

I am led to saying this because of my recent witness of the treatment of a young friend of mine by a coterie of girls.

The young man is from the country. His features are somewhat homely, but he has a very strong face. It shows the stamp of character. Naturally he is somewhat self-conscious and a little awkward because he is unused to city ways.

Nevertheless—
The boy is as clean as a hound's tooth. He has moral fiber. He is clean hearted. And although he may appear somewhat at a disadvantage by the side of certain youths who are glib of speech and sure of their deportment, he is really worth a dozen of them.

It made my blood boil to note the treatment of this fine young fellow by the girls who not only discarded him, but secretly made fun of him.

They know not what they do.
They do not realize the stuff of which this young fellow is made. They do not realize his worth and cannot see that in the long run he is likely to far outshine the easy-mannered youth who by contrast seem to be his superiors.

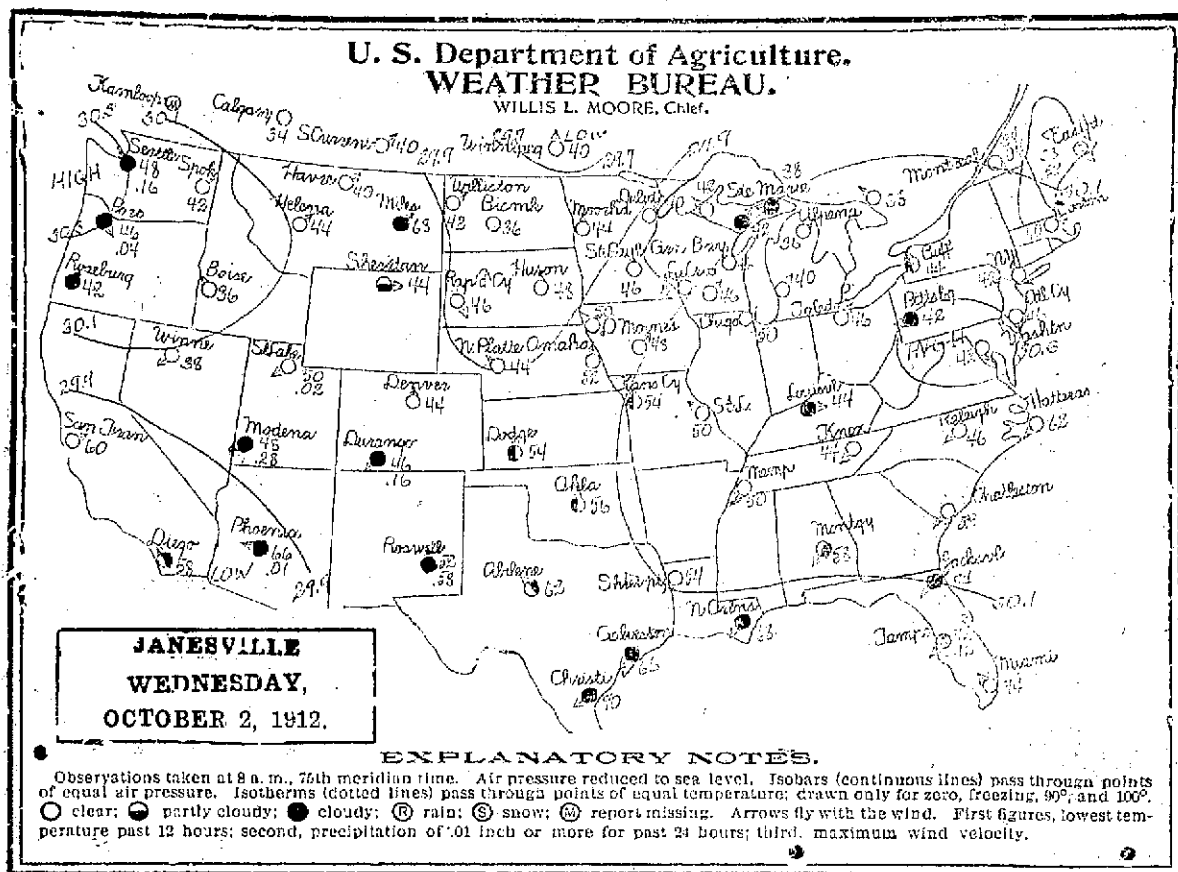

Look you, girls.
That's the mistake many a girl has made who judges by outside appearances and because of her limited knowledge of human nature. It is the mistake made by the girl who picks the youth of showy manners, overlooking the qualities that endure.

My young friend is not of the dazzling sort who shines socially, but is of the kind that will "come out in the wash"—endure the wear and tear of daily life.

If such young fellow comes courting you be careful how you turn him down. Look for moral fiber.

That is the main constituent in the makeup of a real man. Easy manners and apparent refinement may cover up a multitude of weaknesses, while your poor and awkward boy may be a diamond in the rough.

What you want in a husband is a man.
Do not judge by exterior.
Look for worth.

SPECIAL SEED CARE PREVENTS DISEASES

Special seed plots for small grains and corn were urged at the demonstration meeting recently held at the Janesville county farm under the auspices of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. Special preparation may be given to such a plot and the highest grade seed planted in it. It may be harvested at the most favorable time, and should be stored in a special place and spread out thin enough to avoid heating. Many grains cannot germinate properly after being heated to 130 degrees. But the temperature in a grain bin often runs to 170 degrees, and that is in the bottom where some farmers get their seed after feeding from the bin all winter. Prof. Nordgard spoke of fungus diseases which spoil all of the grain on every head they attack. When shocked under ordinary conditions of moisture and heat, these diseases spread rapidly from one head to another. We cannot keep a whole field dry. After planting healthy seed it is much easier to keep the grain on a seed plot in the best condition to prevent grain diseases, by cutting it in the middle of the day and taking special care in shocking. The man who has alfalfa hay caps should use them on his seed grain.

Tears and Their Cause.
Tears have no more to do with sorrow than with any other emotion, and their persuasive powers should be nil. Weeping is merely the dregs of a used-up emotion of any character whatever. Children cry even more easily than women, because their nervous system is less stable; men cry less because theirs is more developed and in better control.

Original Amen Corner.
The origin of the name "Amen corner" is interesting and throws a pleasant light on English Catholicism of the days before the apostasy of Henry VIII. Each year on the feast of Corpus Christi the faithful went in procession to St. Paul's cathedral. Mustering in Cheapside, the procession moved toward the cathedral, the clergy chanting the "Our Father" as they passed along the street still called Paternoster row, reaching the "Amen" as they turned the corner known for years as Amen corner.—Ave Maria.

Medical inspection of 1,000 five-year-old children in Surrey, Eng., revealed the fact that those who had several decayed teeth weighed on an average of 2½ pounds less than those who had sound teeth.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY; DEAD SEVERAL DAYS

Fail to Learn of Death of Mrs. Christina Watts Residing Near Edgerton for Days After Occurrence.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Christina Watts was found dead yesterday afternoon at her farm home on Rock river, two miles east of the city. The discovery was made by James Clark, a nearby neighbor, who at once reported the discovery to proper officials. Upon investigation it was learned that she had been dead two or three days. The deceased was the widow of the late Christina Watts who committed suicide by shooting himself some twelve or fourteen years ago upon the same premises. Since that time the lady lived alone on the 40 acre farm owned by them.

She was aunt of George and James Clark, near neighbors, who repeatedly made attempts to have her leave her premises and take up her home with them, but all proved in vain.

She was seventy-six years of age, a native of Ireland, where the couple also were married, and came here many years ago.

She held a life lease of the farm which now goes to relatives residing in the east. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the farm home of the Clark brothers and interment will be made in Passett cemetery.

Edgerton News Notes.

W. T. Pomeroy had business that called him to Stoughton yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wesendonk and children were Janesville visitors yesterday afternoon, making the trip by auto.

C. A. Frizkie left this morning for Jefferson and Johnson's Creek in the interest of the Edgerton Cigar company.

Mrs. C. F. Stricker went to Milwaukee yesterday on a visit of one week with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Ullins.

The postponed game of football between the Middleton and Edgerton

High school teams was pulled off here yesterday at the Driving Park. The Edgerton team put up a good game, being their first of the season, and won the game, the score being 63 to 6.

The annual harvest supper given last night by the ladies of the W. R. C. was fairly well attended and the receipts are very satisfactory to the organization.

ORDER NO CHANGES, NEW GLARUS BRANCH

State Railroad Commission Dismisses Petitions For Better Service Made By Green County Men.

Petitions and complaints made by New Glarus and Albany business men against the service provided by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road on the New Glarus branch, have been dismissed by the Wisconsin railroad commission before which they were heard.

It was stated by the complainants that changes in the time schedule of trains on the Mineral Point division had seriously inconvenienced travelers from New Glarus and Albany to Monroe allowing them under the new arrangement but several hours in Monroe if they wished to return the same day.

The reason for the delay in making the connections with the Illinois Central trains at Monticello, change in the time freight schedule out of Janesville which freight arrived at 7:00 a. m. instead of 3:45 a. m. as formerly, and the suspension of the New Glarus branch mixed train leaving Broadhead at 6:50 a. m. were also causes for complaint.

PREDICTS A NUMBER OF VIOLENT STORMS

Foster's Bureau Describes Probable Action of Disturbances Which Center on Oct. 10 to 14.

(Copyright 1912 by W. T. Foster.) Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Oct. 8 to 12, warm wave 7 to 11, cool wave 10 to 14. This disturbance covers a larger period and dangerous storms are expected on many parts of the earth. Probably no new storms will be formed in middle or northern latitudes but new tropical storms are expected to organize. In West Indies or in Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico, these are called hurricanes and in East Indies they are known by several names.

The greatly increased magnetic forces on the continent usually go to the storms already organized and increase their violence. These storm centers are usually about 3000 miles apart and move eastward at an average of about 300 miles in twenty-four hours. They move around the earth in about thirty days. The electro-magnetic forces increase and decrease in accord with relative positions of the sun, earth, moon and planets. Sometimes these storms move 1,000 miles a day and at other times very little movement is observed. The storm center is closely behind the highest temperature and you can locate it by watching the reports of temperatures published in the newspapers every day.

You should closely watch the location of the storm centers on the continent during the week centering on Oct. 11, Oct. 8 and 12 we expect storm centers on Pacific slope and in eastern sections and that they will move eastward about 300 miles a day. Those are the disturbances that you should closely watch. We can not more closely locate them for you at this time.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Oct. 11, cross Pacific slope by close of Oct. 12, great central valleys 18 to 15, eastern sections 16. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 11, great central valleys 18, eastern sections 15. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 14, great central valleys 16, eastern sections 10.

This is one of the disturbances you should closely watch as we expect it to be a radical storm throughout its journey across the continent. The cool wave will be a cold wave in northern sections accompanied with snows and followed by very cold weather. In southern sections it will be a very severe cold wave and accompanied by cold rains.

Another disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Oct. 18, cross Pacific slope by close of Oct. 19, great central valleys 18 to 20, eastern sections 21. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 16, great central valleys 18, eastern sections 20. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 19, great central valleys 21, eastern sections 25.

Temperatures of this disturbance will average lower than usual but the trend will be upward, warmer weather, with very little rain or snow, except in a few places, will result and the remainder of October will average about normal temperatures with less than usual precipitation.

Last half of October will be a good time to grow winter wheat and we expect weather to end of December to be favorable to the wheat crop. December will cause a large growth of winter wheat and it will furnish good pasture in those sections where the farmers put their calves on winter wheat pasture.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan returned Monday night from Ridgeway, where she has been visiting her son.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keefe returned Monday night from Trempealeau.

E. Van Patten, E. Gabriel and T. C. Richardson were Madison business visitors Monday.

O. Gustafson of the Shemong Monument Co., Madison, transacted business here Tuesday.

Miss Marie Knudston of Brooklyn, was a recent visitor here.

Will Smith was a Brooklyn visitor yesterday.

Dan Finnane conducted an auction sale at Fairchild, yesterday.

Miss Margaret Finnane was in Albany the last of the week and attended the surprise party on Joseph and Josephine Dumphy.

Walter Tullar of Milwaukee, is visiting relatives here this week.

Almond Irwin Taggart.

Almond Irwin Taggart was born on March 7, 1844, in Courtland County, N. Y., and died at his home here, Saturday afternoon, October 28, after a week's illness.

When a lad of two or three years he came to Wisconsin with his parents and had lived near Evansville for over thirty years. On March 6, 1873 he was married to Miss Laura Tullar, of the town of Union. No children were born.

Beside a large number of friends there are left to mourn his loss his wife and sister, Mrs. Anna Rowley, of this city.

Mr. Taggart has been in the jewelry business here for twenty-five years and was one of the oldest stockholders of the Baker Manufacturing company. The funeral was held at the

FIRE IN BUNK CAR CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Italians Working At Afton Lose Belongings and Flames Threaten Neighboring Buildings.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Afton, Oct. 2.—A bunk car occupied by Italian laborers who have been working on the Northwestern trucks here, took fire from some unknown cause Monday evening and threatened to kindle the Brinkman coal sheds, the creamery and other buildings in the vicinity. Fanned by a strong north wind the flames made great headway and the other five cars were saved only by pushing the burning one away. Citizens turned out in force to fight the flames which rose high into the air and threatened to wipe out the village. Nothing was destroyed besides the car and its contents which consisted of several trunks in which were packed the Italians' belongings. The men claimed they also lost a considerable amount of money.

The Italians were gathered in another car at the time the fire broke out and knew nothing of the cause. They were ready to leave Afton and had their clothes packed. They were quite excited over their loss.

MANY BIG MEN AT IRRIGATION MEET

Questions of vast importance to the agricultural development of the west are scheduled for discussion to be held by men of note at the 20th national irrigation congress, which will open in Salt Lake City on Sept. 30.

United States Senator Francis G. Newlands is president of the congress, and the delegates represent the states, counties, municipalities, irrigation, agricultural, horticultural and engineering associations, colleges and universities, and commercial bodies from every state in the union.

HOGS STILL HIGH; CATTLE TAKE DROP

Sheep Also Have A Poor Market Today Selling At Ten Cents Below Yesterday's Average.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—While trading in the hog market was rather slow this morning prices were slightly higher than yesterday and showed little indication of a decline. Cattle and sheep, however, suffered serious depressions, prices being generally ten cents lower throughout both lists. Sheep receipts were especially heavy at 55,000 and the demand was poor. Cattle receipts were rather larger than expected at 19,000. Today's price list follows:

FRESH GOLDEN APPLES ARE GETTING VERY PLENTIFUL.

Fresh Golden apples are the feature of today's fruit market. These are the first to be found on the local market this season and they are very plentiful. They are selling at 6 cents a pound. The Jonathan apples which came on the market sometime ago are still of a very excellent quality, and they took a slight decline in price this morning. They are now retailing at 5 cents a pound. The Concord grapes which have been of such a fine quality this year are getting to be much more plentiful and are selling at 18 cents a basket. The watermelons, which have had such a heavy run this season are just about all gone and the next few days will see the last of them. They retail at 15 and 25 cents each. In the vegetable line the fresh pumpkins are getting to be very abundant and there is a large demand for them. They are bringing 10 cents each. The prices are as follows:

OBSERVE TWENTY-FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Palmer Residing Near Brodhead Entertained at Dinner Sunday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brodhead, Oct. 2.—The silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Palmer of Spring Valley Township, was celebrated by them last Sunday most appropriately. The family were invited to the home of his father, where a goose dinner was served at the close of which the wedding cake was placed before Mrs. Palmer to cut. It was quite heavy and investigation disclosed the fact that it contained a package in which were twenty-five silver dollars.

Miss Grace Fleek went to Janesville Tuesday afternoon, where she met her sister, Mrs. Melvin Walker and baby. They came to Brodhead on Wednesday and are now guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fleek. Mrs. Walker will return to her home in Boscobel, after a few days.

Miss Maud Hymers returned to her home in Evansville Tuesday, after spending a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. D. Gardner and family. She was accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Lydia Warner and little granddaughter, Arlette Ellis, of Watertown, South Dakota, who were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner.

Mrs. Wm. Wilkinson and Mrs. Justus Sutherland were passengers to Milwaukee Tuesday, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wilkinson and family.

Hon. John Luchinger of Monroe, had legal business in Brodhead Tuesday.

Mayor and Mrs. W. S. Pengra spent Tuesday in Judo.

Ed Broughton of Waco, Texas, was here Tuesday on his way from Marinette, where he went to bury his wife. He will move from the south to Marinette, where he will make his future home.

Repairs on the M. T. church building are well under way and it is thought it will be finished by next week Saturday.

Mrs. George Lewis of Albany, was a Brodhead visitor Tuesday. Also Messrs Harry Zentner and F. Walmer.

English "Hunting Parson."

The Rev. Lawrence Capel Cure, rector of Abbess Roding, whose death is announced, was known throughout West Essex as the "hunting parson." He invariably wore the old-fashioned smock and tall hat and was a familiar figure at the meets of the Essex hounds, which he attended regularly though in his seventy-eighth year.—London Evening Standard.

Bell Ringer's Occupation Gone.

The abolition of the custom of ringing the town bell at Buntingford, Hertfordshire, England, which for 300 years has tolled for deaths and funerals from over the gateway of an inn, throws out of occupation Saunders, the bell ringer, whose family have rung the bell continuously for over 140 years.

Marking Keys.

If you have a number of keys to the stable, shed, henhouse and such buildings that look and feel about alike, put wooden tags on them with one notch for the stable, two notches for the henhouse, etc. You can tell at a glance, then, or by feeling them if it is dark, which key is the right one.

WILLIAMS ENDORSES ROOSEVELT'S PLAN

John Sharp Williams.

Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi has enthusiastically endorsed the suggestion made by Col. Roosevelt that the Panama canal equipment be transferred to the Mississippi river valley for the purpose of improving that great artery of commerce.

"My heart is with the project," declares the Mississippi statesman. "It is time the great Mississippi river project was taken up just as the Panama canal problem was, as a thing to be gone at from every viewpoint and to be completed as one great overshadowing commercial and agricultural necessity."

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN
by Barbara Boyd

Being Too Optimistic.

WE are prodded on all sides, today, to be optimistic that I wonder sometimes if we can't be a little too optimistic.

It is quite true that there is a bright side to most things, if we look for it. But, having found it, wouldn't it pay us sometimes to scan this bright side a little and see if it is real silver or only imitation?

I was set to thinking upon this by a very cheery little woman who works hard to earn a meagre living, and who said brightly: "I like a room with the sun in it. But if I can't get that kind I say, 'Oh well, the sun is hot and it fades things. And so I am content if I don't get it.'"

Isn't that policy a bit wrong? Shouldn't she decide whether or not a room with the sun in it was best for her; and then, having decided, get it or not get it, according to her decision? To be too content really stultifies all endeavor.

It may be this very attitude of hers that is the cause of her working so hard and earning so little. She may want more money, but since she doesn't get it perhaps she says, "Oh, well, maybe if I earned more I would do things I shouldn't," and so is content with what she does get.

But if she really needs more money, she ought not to be content with what she does get. She should go about earning more. Her present salary needn't make her discontented or grumpy. It should simply be an urge to put her cheerily to work trying to secure greater compensation.

Nor, if her work is worth more, should she be content with what she gets. As a matter of justice, of keeping the balance true, a person should endeavor to get all that is his due.

When it is impossible to change conditions, then it is well to be content; for undoubtedly these conditions are the ones that are best. They mean perhaps development of some sort.

But just because a thing is, don't accept it contentedly. Make sure you can't better it. Each one has a right to good. His own portion of good is waiting him. And he should get it.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A FAMILIAR TYPE OF BORE.

THERE are some people in this world whose only interest in other folks' remarks is to use them as a prologue to introduce their own observations.

Surely you know this type, for it is as common as life and dish-washing and as unavoidable as death and taxes.

Sometimes the vacant expression of these people while others are talking shows that they are far away on Olympus Isles where they always hold the center of the stage and others always listen.

Again they appear to listen to you with parted lips and bated breath, but you need not feel flattered. They are not really listening to what you say at all. In reality they are watching for an opportunity to break in with "Yes, I—" or "That reminds me," or some similar grab at the center of the conversational stage.

These people never comment upon or answer other people's remarks. They simply cap them with remarks of their own.

For instance, you see a picture of Maude Adams and say that you saw her in "As You Like It." Where, upon it never occurs to this type of person to ask if you enjoyed the play. Instead he volunteers the important information that he never saw that, but that he once saw Julia Marlowe in "Romeo and Juliet."

Some clever conversationalist is telling a very interesting story of an unusual vacation trip. The rest of the company listen with genuine attention. Being intelligent, open-minded people, they like to hear about new places and customs.

But the "that reminds me" lady has the far-away look of rapt self-communion until the speaker happens to say the name of some place which is familiar to her. At that she comes back to earth and breaks into the conversation with some inspiring bit of information such as "Did you say Grand Manan?" I thought of going there last summer," or "Nantucket, why that's where my sister-in-law spent her vacation two years ago."

Of course, to this type of people other folks' anecdotes are never anything but an introduction to their own. Sometimes they pause long enough to say a word or two of applause before they tell you the infinitely more interesting story they heard. Sometimes they don't risk losing their opportunity by indulging in that courtesy.

Whenever I meet people like this and feel irritated by them I always pause a moment and remember Bishop Selwyn's definition of a bore, which I think I have previously quoted to you—"A bore is a person who insists upon talking about himself when you want to talk about yourself."

Of course, there is always a possibility that the person you are putting in the "that reminds me" class has just about the same opinion of you.

But there is one sure way to avoid this. And that is to exert yourself to take such a genuine interest in what other people are saying that no one will think of classing you with the "that reminds me" folks.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

must have like, if there is to be content.

Children have no more right to rule their parents' lives than parents have to rule their adult sons and daughters. Yet one sees it attempted all the time, to the sorrow of them all.

TOO MUCH BOSSING.

Most of us are always trying to boss somebody else, and order the lives of those in any way connected with us. That's why so many of us are unhappy. If we let people alone, allow events to take their natural course and trust to the Lord a little more, we'd all of us be better off.

"These remarks" are called forth by a recent marriage in which a dear old lady of seventy and a good old gentleman of seventy-one united their lives. They love each other—definitely anybody to prove that age isn't capable of love, and most probably a warmer and more faithful love than that of life-headed youth—they are well enough endowed with this world's goods to live in comfort; neither one is doddering, and they have found through several years of acquaintance that they are entirely congenial.

But it does seem that when parents are not putting obstacles in the way of their children's marriage, the children are objecting to the re-marriage of a parent. In this case it is a daughter who would like to have the marriage annulled because, as she is reported to have said: "Mother is too old to marry."

Too old? Is anybody too old to marry, to have a companion through one's declining years—somebody with similar tastes, somebody intimate and dear, who will fill a want that grown-up children cannot and seldom try to supply?

"I was lonesome," sighed the old lady. There it is. Youth cannot supply full companionship to age. Like ter world if inheritances were not allowed at all except in the way of provision for those who are entirely dependent, or as a deferred payment to one who has earned it in some way.

WAYS OF SERVING CHICKEN.

The "piece de resistance" is fried spring chicken, which, if properly cooked, "would tempt the dying anchorite to eat."

When preparing fowl, do not allow it to stand and soak in water, as thus the delicate flavor is often entirely soaked out of the meat. It is necessary to scrub the skin, using a little soda in the water, to thoroughly cleanse it, but it is best done before the fowl is cut up. Thoroughly wash the inside by letting the water from the tap flush the bird, then cut up at the joints, and it will not be necessary to wash it again.

Roll the pieces of chicken in seasoned flour and fry in hot fat. Butter and sweet lard mixed makes a good frying medium, though it must be watched carefully or it will burn. If the chicken is young and tender, it will not need parboiling, but should cook carefully and long, to be thoroughly done.

Braised Chicken.—Tryout two slices of fat salt pork; cut a fourth of an inch thick, remove the scraps and add to the fat five slices of carrot cut in small cubes, half an onion sliced, two sprigs of thyme, one sprig of parsley, and one bay leaf. Cook ten minutes; add two tablespoonsful of butter and fry a four-pound fowl until well browned, turning until the whole surface is brown. Place on a trivet in a pan, pour over the fat, add two cups of boiling water or chicken stock.

Cover and bake in a slow oven until tender, basting often and adding more water, if needed. Serve with a sauce made from the stock in the pan, first straining it and removing the fat.

A delicious way to serve chicken is to bake it in milk. Cut it up and prepare it as for fricasse. Put it in a baking pan and just cover with sweet milk. Cook very slowly, covered until the last half hour, then uncover and the milk will cook down and make a rich creamlike sauce to serve with the chicken.

When making chicken pie, if an onion is added to the fowl while cooking, the flavor of the pie is greatly improved.

Nellie Maxwell.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

RECOVERING HEALTH.

Germs are the natural means of reducing dead or dying matter back to its original elements. Nutrition is the means by which the elements are made to maintain life. Only when the processes of nutrition fail or are weakened, are the germs required to perform their proper function—the total failure of which would soon make life impossible. The lowering of vitality through overwork, worry or auto-intoxication is a predisposing cause to any disease, seen particularly in the contraction of pneumonia or consumption. Infections need to be combatted and there are all artificial means to assist nature in antedating and overcoming infections and of aiding her in strengthening vital resistance. The body may be regarded as a nutritional machine that needs to be kept in good running order, by adjustment and repairing, but the essential fundamental condition for the maintaining and restoring of health is the maintenance of normal, vigorous nutrition by simple, wholesome food, pure air, water, sunshine, exercise and good mental conditions. The recovery of health depends upon discovering the nature of the abnormal conditions that constitute disease, removing the causes, and leading back gradually and carefully to the normal conditions. Violent means and sudden changes are to be avoided always.

On the other hand, why should an able-bodied parent with means of his own, go to law to get possession of his dead daughter's estate (as in a recent case), when she had willed it to her fiancé? It was hers, earned by her, to be willed as she saw fit. But no! The parent thought he had more right to it than the man whom the dead girl loved best of all in the world.

Why do relatives squabble over the worldly goods left by one who has died, and grow into bitter enemies over something that was never earned by them and to which they probably have no moral right. Sometimes one is tempted to think this would be a better world if inheritances were not allowed at all except in the way of provision for those who are entirely dependent, or as a deferred payment to one who has earned it in some way.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grauel

Household talks should be sufficiently done with less cooking and be tender and savory. A most half of the fuel used in our kitchens is wasted through overcooking our foods, or by cooking them too fast. Liquids boiling at a furious gallop in an open kettle are cooking faster than if they were boiling gently. Almost all foods that are cooked by boiling would be better for cooking in a steamer.

The difference between bad and good cooks is quickly shown by the manner in which the food is served; an important point in the eyes of all careful persons is to have the food served as hot as possible. It gives heightened relish to foods to wait a moment for them but it only harms a dinner to keep it waiting for the diners.

Many cooks work their way through life without ever dreaming that certain things are done for any given purpose; that bread is toasted to extract the moisture and make it more wholesome would fill them with surprise; that sauces make foods more digestible as well as more tempting never occurs to them. They know certain foods "go together" and that's the end of it to them.

Mistresses are often to blame for this state of affairs but since domestic science is now taught in many public schools there is hope for our broiled steaks and boiled potatoes.

Persons who have a natural love for details will always get satisfactory results, for they will not get in a hurry and put in salt for sugar or leave out the seasoning altogether.

The foundation of every good cookery lies in preparing food so that it becomes tender in substance without impairing its nutritious qualities and flavor.

There is no error so common among cooks as that of overcooking food. Meats are made dry, hard, tasteless by hard cooking or high heat, that

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) I am a boy, nineteen years old. Am very much in love with a girl about twenty-seven years old. Would it be right for me to marry her? (2) I am 5 feet, 8 inches tall. Am I too tall? (3) I am working in a store which my mother owns; it is in a small town. Do you think I am in a position to marry? (4) My hair is terribly kinky. Is there any way of making it straight? R. V. BOY.

(1) A woman of 27 who would marry a nineteen-year-old boy would lack one of the first qualities of a good wife, and that is, Common Sense. Do you want that kind of a wife? (2) No. (3) You are probably not making enough money to support a wife decently, and you are not old enough to make any woman happy. (4) I know of nothing that will straighten it permanently. You can smooth it down with vaseline.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I have been keeping company with a girl two months. She said she would give up her boy friends to go with me and I was to give up my girl friends. I have done so, but she didn't keep her word. When I called her attention to it she accused me of being jealous. She refuses to go out with me any more but keeps on telling me she loves me as much as ever. Does she? Is it proper for a girl to enter a café with men? GEORGE.

She probably never loved you at all, but she has the right to go with other boys if she is not engaged to marry you. If by "café" you mean a place where liquors are sold, no respectable girl goes into such a place with or without men.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1)—I have some blue velvet goods and would like it made into a Norfolk suit, but some tell me it is out of style. Kindly advise me. (2) How can I have nice thick eyebrows and eyelashes? (3) What are the best colors for me to wear? I am dark. E.D.A.

(1) The Norfolk style is very fashionable. Velvet is to be much worn. (2) Apply yellow vaseline, but don't make your eyebrows bushy; a fine well-shaped line is much better. (3) Red, dark brown, dark blue, for daytime; champagne, delicate pink cream and yellow tints, for the evening.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a woman. "Mule to Be Reckoned With." "If you give me let that mule do as he pleases?" asked Uncle Ephraim's wife. "What's your will power?" "My will power's all right," he answered. "You just want ter come out by an measure dis here mule's won't power."

"Have you ever cheated anybody in a horse trade?"

"I never have had a horse."

"Ah! You are evading my question. I thought we should find you out sooner or later. You are excused."

At all stages in his career King George has made a point of composing his own speeches. His first speech, made at the age of sixteen, was a failure. It was in the form of a reply to an imaginary toast of welcome proposed by a foreign host. The part of host was taken by the Prince's tutor and was proposed in German, and the royal lad, of course, had to respond in the same tongue. For a long time he could not find his tongue, but when he found it he blurted out, in plump and plain English, "Ladies and Gentlemen,—I—er—The tutor brought his speech to an abrupt end by a none too complimentary remark, and this somewhat angered the Prince. He flung down a book he was holding, shouted that he had "done with such cackle," and, striding from the room, slammed the door behind him.

When Sam Jackson, now the publisher of the Oregon Journal, at Portland, was editor of the East Oregonian of Pendleton he went down to Portland one day and met a cousin from Virginia named Norman. He invited Norman to go up to Pendleton with him for a visit. Norman consented. So Sam wired to Mrs. Jackson.

"Coming on the early morning train—Norman with me." They got to Pendleton about 3 a. m. and went up to the Jacksons. The house was lighted. Jackson was surprised to find Mrs. Jackson waiting for him and was further surprised to observe a rather stern expression on her face.

She met him at the door.

"Where's the woman?" she asked, acidly.

"The woman?" spluttered Jackson. "This woman you refer to in this message," said Mrs. Jackson, handing her astonished husband the telegram he had sent.

It read: "Coming in the morning—woman with me!"

When Robert H. Davis was young and loose in the feet he once wandered into a little Mississippi town. It was a bright day in the early spring and he walked down the main street. By and by he came to the county jail—a two-story affair standing flush with the sidewalk. There was a negro pressing his face against the barred window of the second floor. "Hello, Uncle Ephim," says the one in the window. "Howdy," says Ephim, limping on. "Wait a minute, uncle," says this lonesome negro in the window. "What time is it, uncle?" Uncle Ephim limped right on. He hardly looked up. "What difference does it make to you, nigger?" he asked. "You ain't goin' nowhere."

face with warm water and dry. Then apply the formula which I have already given. The cream will not cost you not more than fifty cents at any druggist.

MRS. OTTO C.—Read what I say above to Julia H. about blackheads. For the simple make-up at a beauty salon given below. This will purify your blood promptly and pimples will disappear. Don't worry about a diet, eat what you want, appetite demands, but chew everything well.

Dissolve twelve ounces of granulated sugar in one-half pint of water, and add one ounce of sodium and mix the whole together thoroughly, then add more water to make a pint. You will have one of the most perfect and effective, simple, and pure. It is possible to obtain. Sarsaparilla is a liquid which you can get at the drug store for seventy-five cents. Take one or two teaspoonfuls of this mixture three or four times a day, with a little water if desired.

ELIZABETH R.—You can remove superfluous hair almost magically and with perfect safety by setting at any good drug store one ounce of simple salicylic solution. It will cost you one dollar. Apply this solution freely with the finger tips on the hair you want removed. Keep the hair moist with it until it has dissolved. This will take but two or three minutes. Then wipe off with a warm, damp cloth and wash the skin with warm water and apply a face cream.

MARTHA D.—The vacuum cups you are now using for development of the bust can only result either in a forced or a natural method, doing violence to the tender tissues of the breasts.

If in a half pint of hot water, you dissolve two ounces of glucose and a half cup of sugar, all well mixed together, you will have one of the most surprising and effective tonics ever used for this purpose. Of this, take 2 teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine glass of water, after your meals. I have found this to be a peculiar tonic, giving astonishing results in a few weeks' time. The glucose you can get at the drug store for one dollar. It is of course, entirely safe.

Science Understands the Stomach

Treating Indigestion with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Is an Exact Science. They Give Quick Relief.

Medical men have learned more about the stomach than perhaps any other vital organ. They have discovered why the stomach rebels at certain conditions—what causes the formation of gases—what causes flatulency, heartburn, dyspepsia, burning sensation, bris, and all the other disorders of the stomach.

They have gone further. They have found remedies for all these ailments, these results of improper digestion. They have learned that pepsin, hydrochloric acid and fruit salts are powerful digestants that relieve quickly and surely all the troubles to which the stomach is subject. They have discovered that one grain of these properties will digest 5,000 grains of food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a medicine. They are a scientific compound that supplies the stomach with the digestive agents which it is itself unable to produce. When your stomach is sick and not working right—when it fails to give out enough of the digestive juices to properly take care of the food you eat, these tablets will make up the deficiency. You will have no indigestion. Your food will digest thoroughly.

You never can tell just when your stomach is going back on you. It gives no warning. If you eat a big meal, if you eat hurriedly, take one of these little tablets. You will avoid a lot of pain and misery. Some of the most prominent men, even these tablets in their great pockets when they attend banquets, etc., and never fail to take them.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 50c a box.

SIDEWALK KETCHES

WHY WHO'S WHO.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE only six-cylinder brain at large in this country is the one used by Senator Elihu Root of New York. This brain is concealed in a small, 674 head, and fills the entire cavity, leaving no room for light and airy persiflage or other braggadocio. When Senator Root's brain is in a state of eruption, very few people care to engage him in a catch-as-catch-can debate.

Senator Root is a thin, compact gentleman, who looks as if he could use additional storage capacity for his teeming thoughts. Whenever these team in a series of high voltage rays, the senator discharges some of the most rapid-fire and compressed-yeast English ever hived from the American rostrum. He is one of the few men we have who can talk unintentionally for several hours, without committing a solecism or injecting any split infinitives.

By profession Mr. Root is a lawyer, but his business is to furnish the brains for the United States senate. When not engaged in this pursuit, he is kept busy constructing the constitution for the benefit of the Supreme court. Elihu is conceded to be our greatest little construer since Daniel Webster. He can construe in any direction without losing his balance or using a word of less than six syllables.

Senator Root is a high-priced workman, and usually has to be retained with the aid of a swollen certified check before guaranteeing to acquit the defendant. He never accepts a case unless he is satisfied that his client is the victim of a foul conspiracy and is in good standing at the First National bank.

Senator Root's eagle eye, determined will and string mustache have done yeoman service in presiding over turbulent gatherings of the plain people. As chairman of the Chicago convention, he gave a fine imitation of a human icicle subduing an insurgent uprising. Toward the close, however, his hearing became so defective that he couldn't distinguish a catarract of "Nays" from a trickle of "Ayes."

BROOKLYN

The Chronicles of Addington Peace

By B. FLETCHER ROBINSON
Co-Author with A. Conan Doyle of The Hound of the Baskervilles
Copyright by W. G. Chapman

"The last train to London was at 10:25, and we had our orders for a carriage to be ready for him at five minutes to the hour. At ten o'clock, precisely I took the liberty of entering the small library to inform Sir Andrew that the carriage was waiting, and that there was only just time to catch the train. He was not there, and the windows on to the terrace being open, I walked through to see if he was sitting outside, the evening being salubrious for the time of the year. It was while I was there that I heard the footsteps of some one running on the gravel, and, first thing I knew, who should appear but Jake Warner, the keeper. 'Hello, Mr. Warner,' says I, 'and where may you be going in such a hurry? Is it poachers?' I says, 'No,' says he, in a sad taking, 'but Sir Andrew's been shot—shot dead.' Mr. Roberts, on the causeway to the island. 'Heaven defend us,' I says, 'but do—'

"Quite so, Mr. Roberts," said Peace. "We understand you were much upset. So you have no idea when it was that Sir Andrew left the little library?"

"No, sir, save that it was between nine and ten."

"Thank you. And now, Mr. Phillips, I think we will go down and have a look at the causeway walk."

At the end of terrace we found a policeman waiting. He touched his helmet to the inspector, and, after a few words with him, led the way down some moss-grown steps and over a sloping lawn towards the lake. We skirted the right hand edge for perhaps two hundred yards, until we came to where a short causeway of stone had been built out into the water, joining the lawn to a shrub-grown island. The roof of a gabled cottage peeped out from the heart of its yews and laurels. The causeway, paved with great slabs of slate, was never more than five feet broad. On either side of it was a dense growth of reathery reeds, hiding the lake behind their rustling walls.

"What cottage is that?" asked Peace, pointing a finger.

"When he was a young man, Sir William, that was Sir Andrew's uncle, used to give lunches and teas there in the summer months," said the policeman. "But, the place has been shut up for a long time now, sir. No one goes to the island barring the ducks, and they nest there by the hundred."

"Where did you catch the prisoner?"

"About this very place, sir. It was about half-past nine, and I was walking down the public path, which passes the east corner of the lake, when I heard the shot. It seemed a strange time of the year for night poaching, but there are rascals in the village who wouldn't hesitate about the seasons so long as they had a duck for dinner."

"On I raced as hard as I could, put legs to the ground. When I came to the causeway head I pulled up and looked about me. There was a slip of a moon over the island and a plenty of stars, so that the night was fairly bright. No one was in sight, but presently I heard the thump, thump, of a man running over the turf, and who should come panting down the slope but Jake Warner, the keeper. He was in such a hurry that he was nigh as close as I am to you, sir, before he saw me."

"Good Lord!" he cried, jumping back; 'and what are you doing here?'

"Didn't you hear a shot fired?" I asked.

"Not a sound of it," he said, with a sulky face on him.

"It surprised me more than a bit. Indeed, I had begun to wonder if I could have been mistaken, when there came a clatter on the slabs of the causeway, and a man rushed out from the reeds like a mad thing. He gave a little cry like a frightened rabbit, when he caught sight of us, and tried to twist away, but his feet slipped from under him, and down he fell. Before he could recover I was sitting on his chest."

"I had no hand in it," he shouted. "I swear to you it was not me. I was to meet him on the island. He was down to it to the loud outcry of the nesting ducks that rose with flapping wings about me and circled round to splash into the water at a safe distance. By a dilapidated wooden landing stage I stopped to light a cigarette. As I threw away the match a ragged tear in the deep moss that covered the plank caught my eye. I stooped to examine it. Under the moss the wood itself was splintered with a deep, fresh scar! I studied the rest of the landing stage without result. Neither the moss nor the exposed patches of woodwork showed any similar signs. The one fresh scar—that was all.

I was still considering the problem when Peace joined me. He was in high good humor. For a time he stared at the mark with his head on one side like a meditative sparrow, and then, seizing me by the arm, led me back by the way we had come.

"Picturesque, eh?" he said, pointing to the old pavilion. "It catches your artistic eye. Perhaps you will have time to make a sketch of it this afternoon."

"Nonsense," I said, irritably enough. "Who shot this poor fellow?"

"No one."

"What—suicide?"

"Nothing so simple, I'm afraid. Now, don't lose your temper. You will understand within the hour. Come along."

"Where are we going?"

"To visit our esteemed friend, Jake Warner. There is just a chance he may show temper. Shall we risk it, Mr. Phillips, or shall we call the policeman from the house yonder?"

I told him quite briefly that I would see the policeman condemned first. Warner's cottage was a straw-thatched, ivy-covered little place, built on the slope of the park. Beneath it a brook that carried the overflow from the lake gurgled merrily, and a thin, long-legged man, who was digging in a patch of garden, stopped his work at sight of us and waited, leaning on his spade.

"Jake Warner, isn't it?" Peace inquired over the low fence of split-pine.

"Yes, sir."

"I am Inspector Addington Peace of the Criminal Investigation Department."

Warner said nothing, but I saw his fingers clench upon his spade, as he gave the detective stare for stare.

"A fairly good breeding season for the ducks, I should imagine," continued the little man, with a benevolent interest.

There was still no reply.

"I understand the foxes are very troublesome."

Warner threw down his spade and strode up to where we stood. His eyes had in them the dumb agony of a wild thing in a trap.

"I am a married man, sir," he said. "For my wife's sake take me away quietly."

Naturally.

"What happens when you put the dollar before the man?" bawled the candidate. "The man goes after it," answered an old farmer in the crowd. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

"No, sir, I am not. But I can never prove it."

"Perhaps it would be best if you explained."

We remained where we were, with the fence between us, while he told his story.

"It was on Monday afternoon, sir," said Jake Warner, addressing Addington Peace of the Criminal Investigation Department of Scotland Yard. "I was crossing the public path that runs near the other end of the lake, when I fell in with a middle-aged, spectacled gentleman, who was strolling along with a tin collecting-case on his back, such as botanists use. We fell to talking, and one thing led to another, until, when I turned off down to the lake to see after my ducks, he came with me. He never meant me harm as I know of, but I would give all I have never to have seen him."

"What was he like?" asked the inspector.

"A short fellow, with a brown full beard and a slight stutter. Very pleasant he was to talk to; but this outside the point, sir, as you will see. We walked down the causeway, and just before the pavilion what should we come across but three dead birds, all with their heads bitten clean off. It made me wild, for the foxes have been plaguing me cruel this spring. Sir William never would have one shot, though he had given up hunting many years. As for the young master, I couldn't say as to his views."

"The stranger, he sympathized very kindly with me, and I told him my troubles. 'How they can expect a keeper to rear a decent lot of wild duck with a plague of foxes in the midst, I'm dashed if I know,' I said. He allowed that a fox who would kill ducks like that was as bad as a man-eating tiger. 'She's a cunning old vixen as won't let me get within shot of her,' I told him, 'but I've half a mind to set a spring gun for her on the causeway here.'

"Bless my soul, how that fellow laughed. He threw back his head and crowed with joy at my idea. 'A spring gun for a fox,' he says, 'why, keeper, it's the very thing! Think of the simplicity of it and the certainty of it and the security of it! Those were his words. After that he sobered down and began talking more serious. Did I really understand how to set a spring gun? I told him no; and then he explained how he had a friend from India who had often used them to kill jackals. Whether I did right or wrong, the fact is that I agreed to set the gun when he sent me the instructions."

"Well, sir, his letter arrived yesterday morning with careful little plans and all. I loaded my gun with buckshot and carried it down to the causeway shortly after dusk. I had lost several more ducks each day, and my mind was made up to have that old vixen. I fixed the gun, with a thread of strong cotton across the path and round the trigger. You may think I took a wicked risk, but I had hardly ever known any one to pass along the causeway in the daytime, far less at night. Yet, for safety's sake, I meant to take it up again at dawn."

"I walked home and sat smoking my pipe for a while. But I was worried and disturbed. I couldn't get it from my mind that there was danger in that spring gun left to itself as it were. Even if I bagged the old vixen some one might hear the shot and find the body. A dead fox would make me a marked man amongst all the hunting people about. I didn't like that thought neither. At last I couldn't stand it no longer, and set off back to the causeway. I was more than half-way when I heard the shot, and that set me running. When I saw the policeman I was mightily afraid he would be finding the vixen dead. That's why I lied to him."

"I know the rest, Warner," said Peace; "but I want a few details. Did you see any sign of another man?"

"No, sir."

"Where was Sir Andrew hit?"

"The chest, sir; he got it full in the chest."

"So I understood. A curious elevation of the muzzle, eh? Did you expect a fox over five feet high?"

MAKES TEN BLADES GROW WHERE 1 GREW

Professor Thomas Shaw.

It has always been considered a highly commendable thing to make 10 blades of glass grow where but 1 grew before. Professor Thomas Shaw, formerly of the University of Minnesota and now agricultural expert of the Great Northern Railway, has done much better than that. Through his efforts largely, stimulating the farmers, giving them expert advice what to grow on different soils, etc., North Dakota came to be the bread basket of the country. And now Montana is coming to the front as a grain producing state, largely through his work.

"I walked home and sat smoking my pipe for a while. But I was worried and disturbed. I couldn't get it from my mind that there was danger in that spring gun left to itself as it were. Even if I bagged the old vixen some one might hear the shot and find the body. A dead fox would make me a marked man amongst all the hunting people about. I didn't like that thought neither. QUIT CALOMEL

Thousands Are Turning From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, Olive-oil calomel tablet.

The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They oil the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Oct. 2, 1872—The Congregational church was well filled last evening and the sales of seats passed off very pleasantly and profitably. After which the audience repaired to the church parlors where the ladies of the church and society had prepared a supper in their best style. At 10 o'clock the company departed for their homes, well-pleased with themselves and all the rest of the human family. The competition for choice seats was less spirited than in former years. The premiums paid however aggregate nearly one hundred dollars.

It is the favorite with the farmers where it has been introduced, and the capacity of the machinery is not equal to the demand. A large and beautiful medal has just been forwarded to the manufacturers, the result of one of the Little Champion's late victories. The inscriptions upon it convey arguments in favor of the machine that cannot be successfully refuted here.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

I had some fell diseases; my back, bone and knees were racked by bitter pain, and I had influenza, that drove me a frenzy, and water on the brain. Oh, I had corns and bunions, and boils as big as onions, and in my eye a sty; I doubt if any dufter could sit around and suffer more earnestly than I. I took the doctor's potion, his bitters by the ocean, his capsules by the peck; the neighbors heard my groaning, and often they were hounding to come and break my neck. And then my Uncle Aaron came up and heard me swearin', and said: "You are a cheese; your noxious dope you drink of, and all you ever think of is just some old disease. The more you sit here grumbling about the spasms rumbling along your battered spine, the more your ill-will sear you, the more your griefs will jar you, the more you'll weep and whine. Forsake your milk-dove hovel, and go and take a shovel, and dig around for bait; forget to shake and shiver, forget your lights and liver, and get your smile on straight." There isn't much of hair on the dome of Uncle Aaron, but inside there is sense; he kept around me, scolding, until I quit blue-moulding, and built a mile of fence. And

STRAIGHT-TIP

Grumpy Passenger—This boat seems to me to be doing a frightful lot of tippin', steward!

Steward (smiling)—Yus; that's more'n the passengers do!

Cloth Made From Seaweed.

By a process recently developed in England a very desirable cloth is made from the fiber of posidonia australis, a species of seaweed found in the southern seas. Experiments made at Manchester university show that the fiber, after treatment, is soft, pliable, strong, much like wool in its disposition, to curl and twist, and easy to spin in its raw state. It takes dye well, except green.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the anguishing of such an advertisement.
